Sunday at Platypus – a free public event 2pm to 7pm, Sunday 26 November

The Sydney Harbour Federation Trust invites the community to a free public event at HMAS Platypus, Neutral Bay to celebrate the site's opening.

The event will feature exhibitions, refreshments and live music with the picturesque Sydney Harbour backdrop.

Exhibitions include:

- Historic photographs of the site from throughout the nineteenth century
- UNSW Landscape Architecture students concepts for the future of the site

Live music will feature performances by:

- Rebecca Moore (2.15pm-2.45pm)
- Trapazoid (3pm-3.45pm)
- Amanda Baker (4pm-4.45pm)
- Dr Goodvibe (5pm-5.45pm)
- Charlton Hill (6pm-6.45pm)

Refreshments available for purchase include a Spanish Tapas Bar, beer, wine, soft drinks, and a mobile coffee cart.

Further information on the event can be found on the Harbour Trust website: www.harbourtrust.gov.au, or enquiries can be directed to the Harbour Trust on (02) 8969 2100.

HMAS Platypus is the site of a former gasworks, torpedo maintenance facility and finally submarine base. The site was handed back to the public in 2005 and the Harbour Trust is currently preparing a management which will guide the site's future use and management.
